Workshop on birds, biodiversity, ecological balance held

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

JORHAT, Dec 8: A five-day workshop on 'Birds, Biodiversity and Ecological Balance' was recently organized by the National Service Scheme (NSS) unit of the Devi Charan Baruah Girls' College, Jorhat, a premier higher education institute of Upper Assam.

NSS Programme Officer of the college Tapan Das, an Assistant Professor of the English department, stated the five-day workshop, which included a field tour, was conducted by Firoz Hussain, an avid bird watcher of the north-eastern region and the founder 'Ask Ids of Indian Birds' - a known bird identification online forum.

The NSS Programme Officer stated that the thrust areas of the said workshop were - the importance of birds to maintain ecological balance, identification of birds, counting of birds, comparing of two similar looking bird species, bird watching, habitat study, conservation of birds, protection of migratory birds and uploading of the entire information on eBird, the largest digital platform worldwide for research on birds.

Das informed that students, faculties, non-teaching staff and other guests participated in the workshop, in which Hussain shared his expertise on birds in general and Indian bird in particular, and later took the participants on a field tour to Borsola and Potiasola beels on the outskirts here - both IBA (Important Bird and Biodiversity Area) hotspots for migratory and local species of birds.

Das further said that participants during the field tour also met local people of the nearby areas and appealed to them to concentrate more on conservation, preservation and protection of the migratory birds during the winter.

The villagers were urged by the group to promote bird watching and bird tourism in their areas so that they could benefit financially by becoming guides to bird lovers who come from across India and abroad, the NSS Programme Officer stated.
